

Retirement to-do list

Diana Archangeli with Douglas Pulleyblank

April 2025

There is always unfinished business at the end of the day. Retirement is fun because you can decide whether any of that unfinished business really needs to be dealt with, and if it does you actually have time to do it.

In my own case, I spend a lot more time on health and mental well-being (that is, hiking, biking, climbing, traveling), new hobbies (drawing, water color, Italian), and family (a wedding, buying a house, first grandchild, another wedding). There was also some unfinished linguistic business that I have been taking care of.

In case you start wondering whether there's any of that in your life, I'm providing a brief list of projects we might undertake. In each case, we have notes (and more) in our files on each of these topics. Just search under 'flotsam'. There is an especially helpful file, titled '00_flotsam_for_cannibalisation_master_01da'.

1. Warlpiri harmony and directionality (cited as 'in prep')
2. Hungarian harmony (cited as 'in prep')
3. Refine Emergent approaches to...
  - (a) derived environment effects
  - (b) opacity
  - (c) chain shifts and saltation
4. Develop an Emergent analysis of...
  - (a) reduplication
  - (b) templatic morphology
  - (c) tone
5. Tiv ablaut (of course)